

WWII GERMAN HEER UNIFORMS & SPLITTERMUSTER CAMOUFLAGE

The Ionic WWII German Heer Uniforms & Splittermuster Camouflage Set includes 12 acrylic paints specially chosen to provide the essential tones for painting WWII German miniatures.

This 12-color set contains all the paints needed to accurately depict the German Heer (Army) uniform from 1943 to 1945, including the classic feldgrau and the distinctive splinter camouflage (Splittermuster) used on zeltbahn, helmet covers, and more. The set includes two shades of feldgrau: a darker tone, ideal for helmets and as a shadow color for the uniform, and a lighter tone representing the iconic greenish-grey shade of feldgrau. For the splinter camouflage, the set provides two different base tones (one darker and one lighter) that can be used for shadows and highlights, or as alternate base colors to represent different production runs and variations. Additionally, the set includes three more colors to complete the camouflage scheme: a dark brown and olive green for the signature angular camo spots, and a darker green for the "rain marks" (the thin vertical lines that define this pattern). The set also includes various browns and black for painting German field gear such as webbing, bread bags, canteens, and ammo pouches. Rounding out the set is "Vanilla," a universal color for lightening other tones and adding highlights.

All colors can be used as-is to paint individual elements, or mixed to create new tones, specially useful for adding volume and contrast through highlights and shadows.
